1st INTERNATIONAL SOIL SCIENCE CONFERENCE (ISSC-2025)

APRIL 22-23, 2025

"Soil- Our Silent Lifeline for a Prosperous Future"

DEPARTMENT OF SOIL SCIENCE
SINDH AGRICULTURE UNIVERSITY, TANDOJAM
SOIL FERTILITY RESEARCH INSTITUTE
AGRICULTURE RESEARCH CENTRE, TANDOJAM
PROUDLY PRESENT

ISSC-2025

APRIL 22-23, 2025

Background

We are absolutely thrilled to host the premier event in the soil science field. Soil is a key foundation for life on earth, supporting plant growth, regulating water cycles, and storing carbon. The conference emphasizes soil's importance as a "silent lifeline," drawing attention to its role in sustaining ecosystems and human survival. With the world's population growing, food security is becoming an urgent challenge. Soil health directly affects agricultural productivity. The conference brings attention to sustainable soil management practices that can enhance crop yields while maintaining ecological balance. Healthy soils sequester carbon, mitigating the effects of climate change such as droughts and floods. The event emphasizes the need for soil restoration initiatives focused on revitalizing degraded soils, improving fertility, and ensuring long-term sustainability for agriculture and ecosystems.

Recognizing the urgent need for sustainable soil management, the Department of Soil Science, Sindh Agriculture University, Tandojam, in collaboration with the Soil Fertility Research Institute, Agriculture Research Centre, Tandojam, is organizing the 1st International Soil Science Conference: Soil Our Silent Lifeline for a Prosperous Future. This conference welcomes students, agronomists, nutritionists, researchers, industry members, policy makers, and scientists from public and private sectors involved in plant and human nutrition, fertilizer production, plant biology, genetics, agronomy, horticulture, ecology, environmental sciences, and related disciplines. It's an exceptional opportunity for discussions, knowledge exchange, and fostering both new and existing collaborations.

The beauty of Sindh Agriculture University, Tandojam lies in its rich academic environment, lush green landscapes, and cultural heritage. The university is surrounded by green fields, orchards, and farms, tree-lined pathways create a refreshing and peaceful environment reflecting the essence of agricultural education.
